News Incident.

Her Fourth Anniversary.

Emily Gene Herr, who attained the mature age of 4 years last Tuesday celebrated the event by having a score or more little ladies and lasses at her pleasant home and giving them a most delightful time. Emily Gene is a winsome, pretty little maid, and on this occasion she was a charming hostess. Games of a sort that children love were played until the girl in whose honor the affair was given, decided that it was "time to eat the party up" which they forthwith proceeded to do. Ice cream and cake were served at tables garnished with roses, and each guest received a favor, one kind for the girls and another for the boys. Miss Emily Gene was the recipient of many appropriate presents and all voted the occasion fine.

Surprised His Friends.

Charley Marcum, completely surprised his relatives and friends by falling in love and going to Kentucky and getting married. Even his father—Judge W. W. Marcum—never dreamed that Charley was thinking of taking a life-partner. The ceremony was performed at Catlettsburg Wednesday, Aug. 23, 1911, by Rev. Thornburg, of the M. E. Church, South. The happy young bride was Miss Stella Weymouth, of Huntington, daughter of the president of the Camden Park Amusement Company.—Ceredo Advance.

TO THE VOTERS OF LAWRENCE COUNTY:

As Kentucky is going forty thousand Democrats this November and our present county judge don't want the office another term, and as we want everything Democratic this year I want to suggest a Democrat that has never been beat and that can win. He has been Squire for 25 years and I have watched him find him like a book and he is a hostler, industrious, honest and gives honest judgments and has never been reversed in any of his judgments to my knowledge.

He is in favor of good roads and bridges and has done more to get good roads and pillow just claims than any one of the Squires and has the best roads in his locality and kept the best of any place in the county. He has been Squire so long he is a pretty-tale lawyer. He is and always has been the poor man's friend and works and helps them.

Now, if the Democrats or voters of Lawrence want a go-ahead, worthy hustler for county judge just nominate Squire John Hughes and I would that the county will be in better condition. Better roads and bridges and the poor people better taken care of than they have been for years, and I am as certain that he will be elected as that I am here. Everybody knows him, and everybody likes him and he goes all over the county and tries the easiest whenever he is sent for. Now listen to an old and experienced man and our county will in the next two years improve under his management more than it has in the past eight or ten years.

An Old Democrat.

GOOD ROADS AND GOOD SCHOOLS GO TOGETHER.

As I feel interested in the steps of our new superintendent Mr. O'Daniel, I would like to say a few words through the column of your paper. Mr. O'Daniel is taking steps to clear the old debt that is hanging over our school property. I consider this one of the best steps that could be taken for this is one of the most disagreeable troubles that we have, this is making some of the taxpayers pretty sore just now, but before Mr. O'Daniel serves his time out they will all be well. We ought to be proud that we have a man in office that knows the war is over. If somebody don't start the hull to roiling Lawrence county will always be in the dark. If we don't need good schools now, when will we? We are getting good schools all over the county, and if everybody will stick to him we will have as good a school system as can be found anywhere. If our other county officers would drop the old fogie and do away with the old six day broad hoe system of working the roads in Lawrence county and make an up-to-date system as Mr. O'Daniel is making our school system we can be enjoying the comforts of the new world instead of being back fifty years. If we can pay school tax, why can't we pay road tax? The county will never be able to make roads unless someone makes a start as Mr. O'Daniel has and when we get roads then we will have a chance to make money to pay for them, but as it is you can't get any of your produce where you can sell it, with the present roads, and till that we raise that we cannot use ourselves is lost, while there is someone just a little beyond buying produce that is being shipped in from other places, and paying two prices for it and sending the money out of our county that we could use to pay taxes with. Now boys next county election don't boys next county election don't vote for some good young up-to-date men for the old men don't seem to see the needs of the present day, and it is ours now. Let us wake up to the idea that good schools and good roads go together. With these we can have a prosperous country. Lots of pleasure and lots of fat horses. How many of the old men are sitting in the shade worrying their lives away? If we had good roads so they could run them some truck patches and take their stuff to town and sell it and have their pocket change and meet up with our old friends and have an old time chat and pass the time off and make life worth living in their old days, besides a booming prosperous country for the younger generation. With best wishes to the News I remain a

SUFFICIENCY OF THE BIBLE.

As the Text-Book of the S. S.

By Rev. L. M. Copley.
(Concluded from last week.)

Our Father expects and requires us to master the Book He has given us. His object in making this revelation of His purposes and plan was not to mystify or confuse men, but to enlighten and guide them. It will not do for us to excuse our ignorance of the Bible, taking refuge behind the assertion that it is mysterious and beyond our comprehension. Such a position is an insult to the Almighty. Did He have a message for men? Yes. Could He not express it in intelligible terms? Yes. Did He do so? He did. Then why not understand it? There are various reasons. First, to know exactly what God says, we must know the original languages. A person of ordinary ability can get enough knowledge of the original languages in a very short time to enable himself to know what was the mind of the Spirit. We have no valid excuse for not knowing something of the original Hebrew and Greek, and when we get a glimpse of the truth of God really gave it, the Bible at once becomes a new book to us. The results acquired infinitely more than compensate for the effort. It is not if we cannot drink directly from the original fountain, let us be sure that what we do drink has not been drawn too long. Let us get the most up-to-date translations and read them. With all due respect for the work done in the history of modern civilization by our common King James version, I unhesitatingly say that it has survived its usefulness as a version of God's word. The translation is incompetent and its language is out of date. It was not made from copies of the original manuscripts at first. It was simply a revision of existing versions, only eight manuscripts being available or used and they dating back only to the 10th century. Not one of the great and truly valuable MSS. was used in making it. It is misleading in many places and has fixed doctrines in the popular mind that it will require many years to correct. In a word, a version of the Bible which contains more than 20,000 errors is not the one for the rising generation to study if we expect them to know the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

Not only must we know at hand what the Book says, but we must take it up for study we must read it without glasses; the must denominational glasses. Persons think they are best. Many of the truth, when as a matter of holding they are simply looking at the fact, own glasses. If I read the their through Baptist glasses, its me, Bible will look Baptistic. If you range it through Methodist, Presbyter, or other sectarian glasses the truth will have the color of the glasses worn by you. Of course, the method of Bible study is usually harmful. Why? Because the truth is greater than the creed of any church. There is no church in the world that contains all the truth, neither is there one that does not contain some error. We may master in detail every element of belief as taught in any church and still be ignorant of the real truth as it is in Jesus, we may know all the churches without knowing Bible truth.

our slogan be honest! To the TO THE ORIGINAL BIBLE. When we honestly do this, the disgruntled members of nominal Christendom will begin to heal and the scandal of our faith will be removed. But so long as we cling to a defective version by which the church is broken up and the old church is destroyed.

THE WISDOM FROM ABOVE

Daniel 1, 18-20—Sept. 10
"It is good neither to eat flesh nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth."—Romans 14, 11.

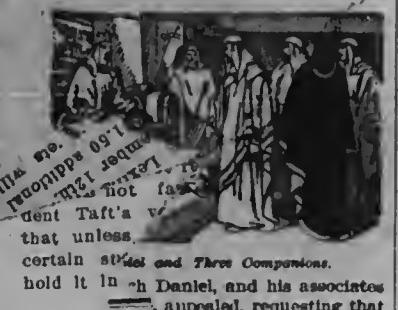

HMONGST the earlier captives brought by Nebuchadnezzar from Jerusalem some twenty years before its destruction, were four young men of evidently noble birth and religious training, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. These captives were not maltreated nor enslaved, in the ordinary sense of the term. Their intellectual qualities were discerned, and they were put into a superior school that they, with others, might be fitted to constitute a board of wise men, counselors of the king. So different is all this from the neoplatism, "graft" and "pool" of our day that it seems almost incomprehensible.

We may here learn a lesson of how God is able to make even the disasters of life work out blessings for those who are truly loyal to Him, even as faithful Daniel and his companions were blessed and prospered in the enemy's land.

Advantages of Abstemiousness

The young Hebrews were attached to the king's household and were provided with extraordinary delicacies, including spirituous liquors. The policy of the king in providing sumptuously for all the students was that, being well nourished, they might be their best physical and mental condition. This lesson shows that it is a mistake to suppose that high living is specially conducive to intellectuality—not to mention spirituality.

From the beginning, under God's providence, the deportment of Daniel brought him into special favor with the prince of the eunuchs, who had in charge the temporalities of these students. There is something in a meek and quiet spirit that is impressive, and as a rule such a spirit comes only from a proper, religious training. To

Illustration showing Daniel in the lion's den, with three other figures (likely his companions) looking on from outside. A banner at the bottom reads: "I am the man who has been cast into the lions' den, but I have been delivered by the power of my God. I am not afraid of your king or of your people, for I have been delivered by the power of my God."

they might have a plain vegetable diet. Their request was granted. An informant of the period of their confinement said that King Nebuchadnezzar commanded with great severity that all were to be fed on plain vegetables, and it proved to be Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. King Nebuchadnezzar: " . . . and in the winter of wisdom and underglide concerning which the king accounted of them he found them ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters that were in his kingdom."

The Secret of Daniel's Success

What was the secret of this wisdom and understanding? Did not the secret lie in the blessing of God and in the fact that these young men sought to devote their lives to the doing of the divine will—to the doing of righteousness? Such minds anywhere, at any time, are scarce. Such minds always run after wisdom. On the other hand, war, envy, selfishness, the grinding of axes, always beset the world.

relative need today in every walk consecrated men of the State and their associates, who will give the service of their felicitous sphere their lives.

Cashmere

Editor Big Louis, Be a Daniel! Dear Editor, of us today can be seen to the high position and certainty, and though spirits as was Daniel, the same spirit of principles of righteousness will be tested, unbalance, step by step, in every way, as they footstep of His example—our Daniel, our Lord Jesus. Let all be faithful. What is really needed is the Daniel spirit; and that is a ability with every man and every man—young or old. "Dare to be a Daniel," Alas! how few appreciate privilege, how few are emulating Maps, Plans, Estimates, Reports, Supervision.

Map, Plans, Estimates, Reports, Supervision, throughout this Age, are very similar to that of the great King of Glory has the School of Christ. He select a few to be joint-heirs to the Kingdom when it is established. The test of will come in the end of this world, who will then be found such as have the Daniel devotion to God and to of righteousness—will own their lives in the truth—followers in the ways. Of these the Lord says, "They shall be Mine, that Day when I

A BLIGHT

A Story of a Negro Whom a
Hunt Always Attended

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The year 1860 marked the acme of plantation life in the south, a life which only persons now quite old have lived. There were two sides to slavery—one as represented by the kind master, the other by the man who considered his slave as a mere piece of property. Naturally the families of the more refined class of planters formed a society of their own, and it was among these especially that instances of fidelity and attachment occurred.

Down to his ruled and taken care of by their masters as a child is brought up by its parents, many of these negroes, after the war had set them free, went to their former owners and the plantation homes. It was there that the negro worked by day in the cotton field and in the evening sang those melodies, a product of the period, expressing a condition that died with the advent of emancipation. The relations between master and slave have passed away with the system, and the following incident, told me a few years after the close of the war which abolished that system, could not possibly occur today:

After the surrender at Appomattox I had occasion to travel through a portion of the south. In Tennessee I found a plantation to which large numbers of the negroes who had lived on it as slaves adhered as freed men. Their master, quite an old man now, paid them wages, while they had not as yet learned to handle for themselves. Interested to know how they liked the change, I approached a darky about thirty years old, who was sawing wood, and I questioned him.

"Do you darkies like the way you live better than when you were slaves?"

"Some oh am' pears to like it, if they like to we're. Then that don't like to work don't like it so well as hefo. Come if dey don't work they don't git somethin' to eat."

"How do you feel about it?"

"In case air quar, I hasn't got no buss'n's about it. Dere's a hant what goes around with me—not a real hant raised up in a sheet, but a hant ob de Devil's. I don't take no interest in anything. I'm a kind of a dead nigga."

He stopped in his wood sawing (look), but over the landscape with a sorrowful gaze. I waited, feeling he had a story to tell and he would tell it without urging. I was disappointed.

"I was born," he continued, "on de same day as Missy Delta, an' her mommy was my mothe'. Consequence was dat when we two chillen was littl', we was toggeder all de time. I people say when we was three Nutt yea' old, goin' round with our' ear, 'oun' eachudder, how quir my Gid face looked alongside her white up 'n' her skin was white an' pink. C'mon! Missy Delta grew older an' didn't do 'nuff fo' me, an' I war ready to give up no ghoes' for her time. Eh she wanted anything else all I had to do war to say, 'Delta, yo' dat fo' me, won't yo', gomen?' L'ong war de use ob speakin' any way, a nigger? I done it mighty quiet, I wanted to keep on things I want fo' hor all de time. I couldn't git 'em to do plantation."

"Den Cunnel's, Clair's son, Harry, come along, an' saw might quick he an' Missy Delta war lubbers. He war a fine, young man—Harry war all an' straight, black curly hair, an' might diffrer from Missy, who looked like a peach. When his fath'r gwine he hab a big plan, an' a thine' niggers. It wuz a settled dat Missy Delta gwine to be him when she wuz broke out."

"C'mon! Mars Harry b'leve ink de under you, one to do. Go with de cavalry, an' lomen. We go with de cavalry up 'n' down. Do yo' see dat galley up dat road? Right der dat Missy Delta says, 'Jus' now, will yo' do somep' fo'?' 'Ju' now, Missy Delta, fo' yo'.' An' she says, 'Missy Delta, fo' yo'.' Right now to do ribber an' drownin' if I'f'!"

"An' she says, 'I don't want to drown, self. I want yo' to come down, self. Who didn't say yo' to? Who fo', Missy Delta?' 'To' o' my Harry, I want yo' to come down with him as his servant to tak car' of his bose an' all. I want yo' to keep him to me as much as yo' kin. An' if somethin' or wounded I want yo' at plantation house now!' I asked.

"How did your mistress treat you after the misfortune?" I asked.

"Misfortune! Dat warn't no misfortune; dat war yieldin' to temptation. I one ob de goats dat is tooken from de sheep. Eh I hadn't listened to dat Mars Harry wouldn't 'a' got killed. I didn't hab do courage to go back to de plantation for a long time; den I akened in among deudder niggers an' hid in de pen. Some nigger sor me 'n' tolle Missy Delta I was come home. She heard all about how Mars Harry got killed, an' than war n't nothing fo' in to fese. She sent fo' me to come up to do house. My legs hu'dly carried me dar. Missy Delta war standin' by herself in do ball. I stood at do door. When she sor mo' she put up her han', she kust to her eyes hit' hold out her hand to me. She didn't say no wo'd, but I known she fo'gib me."

"Dat didn't do me no good," he continued after pause, "'cause I didn't fo'gib myself."

"In your mistress living at the plantation, I want yo' to do plantation run down since de procklemmon. De uders won't work de ball'my all go to de debbil!"

"My 'n'ruis to missey," deedument a woman dressed in dooring came out of the front lookin' manor house and stood

"Daddy on the landscape. Ing at Delta," said Julius, lookin' of his eye, the usual malice, over it, unifid. "She never git stricken git ther it. She war in de feedcar; I war stricken nowhain'; de day I see missey see Mars Harry I wake up road."

"Day we lebe de plantation, Harry an' I, to jine de reg'ars Harry he de fines' overseer lot. Wa jine in with heeler's cav' an' go gal-

HOW TO TAKE EXERCISE.

Sedentary Workers Need to Use Their Muscles Regularly.

Look at the city dog or the city horse—if any still exists. Let these animals be pampered, full fed and kept from work or play, and they become fat, indolent, decrepit, short lived. They must have exercise really to live. It need not be the rigorous task of the foxbound or the coursing greyhound or the hard drilling of the thoroughbred race horse in training. But a reasonable amount of exercise they must have in order to live.

So with the city man, the brain worker, the man of sedentary occupation. And Iannanbee as "unn," of course, "embriored woman"—as the philosopher said—it follows that she, too, needs reasonable exercise if also would live at her best. But the reasonableness of the exercise must never be forgotten.

It would be suicidal folly for the hardworking business man or practitioner of a learned profession to box ten rounds a day with a pugilist at top speed or to run a mile at his best pace or to play three fast sets of tennis. Yet three or four rounds a day or six rounds every other day at moderate speed, with, say, a couple of minutes' brisk mixup at the finish, or a pleasant jogging run, or a set of tennis daily, or six sets distributed over a week, would do wonders in keeping the busiest sedentary worker full of the joy of living and doing and out of the hands of the doctors.

Preferably man should take his physical exercise as play. A pleasant swim of fifteen or twenty minutes' duration, a swift stroll with a friend or two over five or six miles, a lively game or two of squash or tennis or handball—any one of these will do a man more good than hours of monotonous manning a prancing bag or pushing dumbbells. The mind, the soul itself, is benefited by play, while the bodily functions are strengthened by the physical work in the game.—Harper's Weekly.

THE INJURED FINGER.

How to Treat It When No Antiseptics Are to Be Had.

Every one knows that disfigurement and sometimes suppuration oftentimes follow the bruising of the fingers. Worse still, at times the injury results in an unsightly finger nail until the blackening disappears.

"How have you been foaled in love?"

I asked him.

"It was this n-way. I was born on this farm, and when I wasn't but sixteen a man bought the Owen farm, about two miles down the road. He had a little gal about two or three years younger than me. She was the stillest thing you ever seen; mighty straight little figure, dressed not far below the knees and two pigtails behind tied up with ribbons. I never was a boy's boy and didn't care anything about her. When I met her on the road I used to go on the other side. Once when I passed her I noticed her lookin' sideways at me like a robin or a chipmunk. When she saw me lookin' at her she dropped her eye to the road and you'd 'a' thought butter wouldn't melt in her mouth."

"One day when I was fishin' in the creek I heard some one just below windin' in a reel and, lookin' through the trees, saw Mary Owen castin' in line. I just fished on, payin' no attention to her. First thing I knew I heard a cry. I left my fishin' pole layin' on the bank and went to see what was the matter. There was Mary holdin' out her thumb with a hook in it. The barb had gone into the flesh so far that it must be cut out. I took out my knife, opened a sharp blade end by dola' some scissin' into the thumb took out the hook. I must 'a' hurt pretty bad. She kep' up till the job was finished, then she fell into my arms with her head on my shoulder."

"I didn't think so then, but since I've been satisfied she just pretended to faint on purpose. That's the first lesson in the deceitfulness of women-kind I ever had. Even this little gal wasn't willin' to let a boy about her own age alone, no goin' his way and she hers."

"Wuh, when she come to or per-tended to come to herself she was lyin' in my arms lookin' up in my face. One faintin' wan't enough, so she had to faint ag'in. The reason for this was that my lip, wan't more 'n a couple o' luches from her, and I reckon she fainte the second time so's to give me a chance to kiss her."

"Wuh, I done it, like a fool, and it tasted so good I done it ag'in and ag'in. I reckon if I'd a kep' on she'd stayed unconscious all summer. When she opened her eyes ag'in she pretend she didn't know I'd been kissin' her. I tied up her thumb with her handkerchief and told her to go home. But she didn't. She said she felt weak and sat on the grass with her back up ag'in a tree."

"We sat there till supper time. Then she went home, and I came back home too. That was the beginnin' of it. The next day I went fishin' again. I didn't care for the fish. I wanted to taste the little gal's lips ag'in. She didn't care for the fish in the creek. She was fishin' for a boy about my size. We done a heap of fishin' after that till I found the kisses didn't taste so good as the first ones I took, and about that time we youngers organized a baseball team, and I didn't go fishin' so much as I had been doin'; consequently I didn't see so much of Mary Owen."

"Fact of it was that I wanted to see how much Mary would hanker after me when she didn't see me. And there's where I first learned about her seductions. Do you know, stranger, she didn't miss me a hit?"

"No, I didn't know," I replied.

"How to Clean Straw Mats.

Here is an easy way in which to keep the straw hats of the family as good as new. Five cents' worth of oxalic acid, a clean soft cloth and an old but good toothbrush are necessary. Dissolve the acid, take the hat in the left hand, dip the brush in the acid, rub a small piece at a time and then rinse off with water and wipe dry. Work rapidly, holding the hat so the acid and water will run off. With care it can be done without taking off the band and done in a few minutes. It is well to work near a furnace.
